

HPL Book Club Update: June 2020

Here are some comments from the June book club meeting. Next month we are planning to meet socially distancing in the park - July 6, at 6 pm unless the weather commands otherwise!

Here are comments from meeting:

- The Princeton Garden Theatre's website is a good source for all sorts of streaming entertainment: <https://princetongardentheatre.org/arts>. That was how I found out about the Met's daily posting of opera performances. The Globe and the National Theatre in the UK are doing something similar as well if you prefer plays.

- Wonderful Interview with Chloe Benjamin on WCBS 880 about the Immoralists.

- Books we read this month in addition to the book club book:

The Great Influenza, The Ringmasters Daughter, The Scent Keeper, Thomas Edison Bio, Machines like me, Catalyan Street, The Door, Red head at the side of the road, Frog Magic, The cookbook collector, Caleb's crossing, Harry potter, Grimm's fairytales, Chris Bohjalian The Flight attendant, Sandcastle girls, The double bind, Midwives, The wife between us, you are not alone, Love Medicine, War and Peace, The Night watchman, The splendid and the vile, Robbin Williams Bio, Met Opera recordings for free on their website

- I have also been participating in this free class online <https://oyc.yale.edu/english/engl-291/lecture-2>
All the lectures are free, this on is The American Novel since 1945, the videos and resources are awesome. If this isn't your cup of tea, there are plenty of other free lecture available on the Yale Open classes page.

I hope this finds you well,

Best
